

Cambridge Growing Spaces is a Transition Cambridge project. We aim to reclaim unloved and underused public spaces around the city of Cambridge and transform them using edible landscaping for humans and wildlife. All food from our spaces is freely available to the population.

We are a friendly group and meet regularly to plan, plant, take care of current spaces and to look for new spaces.

www.cambridge.growingspaces.org

- Are you a keen gardener already?
Are you unable to access your own garden or allotment, for any reason?
- Would you like to design or garden public spaces?
- Are you interested in transforming unused spaces in your neighbourhood?

Transition Cambridge's Growing Spaces project is looking for volunteers to expand their projects.

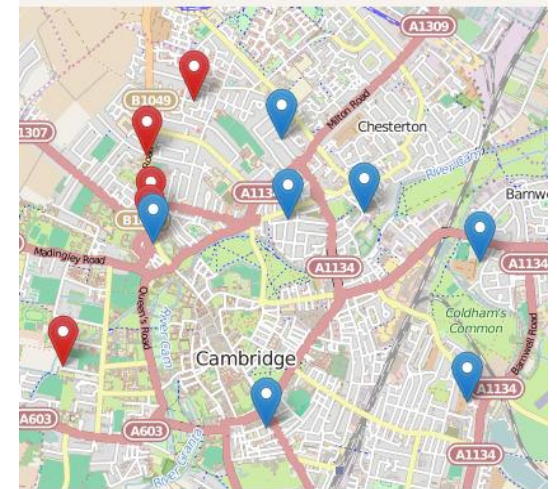

Contact us:

www.cambridge.growingspaces.org

by e-mail : admin@growingspaces.org

Or by telephone: 07 952 065 561

- Do you know of a public space that could do with care or with herbs, fruit bushes, or vegetables?
- Would you be interested in caring for a small space near your home, work or study place ?

Map of current spaces we are taking care of (in blue) and of potential new spaces (in red)

For more information visit our website:

www.cambridge.growingspaces.org

or our facebook group page.

You can find other very useful information on our collaborators websites:

- www.transitioncambridge.org
- www.cambridgesustainablefood.org
- <http://incredibleediblenetwork.org.uk/>

Cambridge Growing Spaces is a Transition Cambridge project

We are working in collaboration with Cambridge City Council, Abbey People, and the Cambridge Sustainable Food network.

A big thank you to many generous individuals, as well as Scotsdales, Ridgeons, and Cambridge WoodWorks for their in-kind donations! Thanks also to P&G's Future Friendly Contest and Cambridge City council's Sustainable City project for grant funding.

Transforming unloved public spaces into edible
and wildlife friendly landscapes

www.cambridge.growingspaces.org